DIRECTORY OF ALCOHOL AND OTHER DRUG ABUSE SERVICES IN SOUTH CAROLINA

A County-by-County Listing of Public and Private Treatment and Prevention Providers

South Carolina
DAODAS
Department of Alcohol and Other Drug Abuse Services

2006-2007

About this directory...

This directory is designed to provide helping professionals with an understanding of the availability of treatment and prevention services in the state and to assist them in making appropriate referrals.

The directory was compiled from the lists of facilities licensed by the South Carolina Department of Health and Environmental Control (DHEC). All licensed facilities that provide alcohol and other drug abuse services have been listed alphabetically by county.

Although most of the information included in the directory is self-explanatory, four items warrant further explanation. First, the item identified as "Type of Facility" designates each service provider as private, private/non-profit, public (with responsible agency in parentheses) or county alcohol and drug abuse authority. This final designation refers to the 33 agencies authorized by South Carolina Act 301 of 1973, which required each county council to designate an authority to provide mandated services in cooperation with the South Carolina Commission on Alcohol and Drug Abuse (now the South Carolina Department of Alcohol and Other Drug Abuse Services [DAODAS]).

Second, the item identified as "Level of Care" lists the specific type(s) of treatment provided by the respective programs. The six most common levels of care are: outpatient treatment; social model detoxification; freestanding medical detoxification; halfway house; residential treatment; and inpatient treatment. Also identified within the "outpatient" designation are more specialized services offered on an outpatient basis, including intensive outpatient treatment, day treatment, partial hospitalization and transitional housing, a relatively new service that provides safe and supportive housing for women and their children, as well as on-site outpatient treatment and continuing care services.

The "Level of Care" is listed for the practitioner's use. All referrals for services will be based upon a clinical assessment of an individual's "problem severity" or "level of need."

Third, the "Number of Beds" is provided for each program, with the number reserved for each level of care given if available.

Fourth, the item identified as "Accreditation" indicates whether a program has been accredited by either CARF: The Rehabilitation Accreditation Commission or the Joint Commission on the Accreditation of Hospital Organizations (JCAHO).

Treatment in South Carolina

South Carolina's system for dealing with alcohol, tobacco and other drug related problems had its inception in 1957 when the General Assembly authorized the creation of the South Carolina Alcoholic Center. Today, South Carolina is one of the few states in the nation to recognize the merits of supporting a single state authority on alcohol and other drug abuse — the South Carolina Department of Alcohol and Other Drug Abuse Services (DAODAS) — as a cabinet-level governmental agency. This cabinet-level status, together with its dedicated leadership and quality services, has fostered the development and refinement of a comprehensive, statewide service-delivery system designed specifically to deal with problems related to the use of alcohol, tobacco and other drugs.

Today, DAODAS contracts with 33 single- and multi-county alcohol and drug abuse authorities to provide state and federally mandated prevention, intervention and treatment services in all 46 counties of the state. To ensure the provision of quality services, DAODAS monitors each of these programs in accordance with specific standards required for program implementation. The department provides consultation and technical assistance for program development and maintenance, and coordinates training and other continuing educational activities for professionals who work with individuals who are experiencing problems with alcohol, tobacco and other drugs.

A wide array of treatment services is available through the state's 33 county authorities. Specific services include outpatient treatment, social model detoxification, freestanding medical detoxification, halfway houses, residential treatment, inpatient treatment and transitional housing. These programs are designed to arrest the disabling effects of the misuse of or addiction to alcohol, tobacco and/or other drugs, including smoking cessation.

In addition, specialized services are available at the local level for individuals and families who are experiencing problems related to gambling addiction. Counselors throughout the state have received extensive training in this area and provide a range of services to address the unique and critical needs of this population. Services include an individualized assessment and treatment plan for each individual. Group sessions are available to deal with the nature of compulsive gambling, denial and recovery, and the relapse process.

According to patient and service information reported for fiscal year 2006, approximately 48,000 individuals in this state received direct or indirect intervention and/or treatment services through DAODAS and its statewide network of county authorities between July 1, 2005, and June 30, 2006.

Prevention in South Carolina

Substance abuse prevention programs are available through the 33 county alcohol and drug abuse authorities, as well as certain other public and private entities. The county authorities offer and implement prevention programs and strategies that create or enhance environmental conditions within communities, families, schools and workplaces. These programs and strategies aim to protect individuals from the dangers of using alcohol, tobacco and other drugs (ATODs). The programs also seek to help people develop personal decision-making skills to reduce the risk of ATOD-related problems such as violence, delinquency, unplanned pregnancies, sexually transmitted diseases and poor academic performance. Available in communities throughout South Carolina, prevention services are based upon principles of sound research and are designed to identify and reduce factors that place an individual or a community at risk of experiencing problems, while at the same time, strengthening other identifiable factors that can help protect individuals and communities from developing such problems. The following are the categories for prevention services provided throughout the state as defined by the federal Substance Abuse and Mental Health Services Association (SAMHSA):

- Information Dissemination – This strategy focuses on key and valid facts about the nature and extent of ATOD use, abuse and addiction, and their effects on individuals, families and communities, as well as information to increase perceptions of risk. It also provides knowledge and awareness of prevention policies, programs and services. It helps set and reinforce norms (e.g., underage drinking and drug dealers will not be tolerated in a particular neighborhood); it helps establish true norms of use (everyone is not using); and it helps increase perception of risk of use among a target population (e.g., I really could get caught for underage drinking and lose my driver's license; people really do die from alcohol poisoning).

- Prevention Education – This strategy aims to develop critical life and social skills, including decision-making, refusal skills, critical analysis (e.g., of media messages), and systematic and judgmental abilities.
- Alternatives – This strategy provides for the participation of targeted populations in activities that exclude ATOD use by youth. The theory is that constructive and healthy activities offset the attraction to – or otherwise meet the needs usually filled by – ATOD use. Evidence indicates that this strategy is more effective when it: (1) serves as an alternative to an event that would normally involve alcohol use and therefore helps to modify community norms (usually on a college campus); or (2) integrates key risk or protective factors into a long-term program. "One shot" events have generally not proven to be effective.
- Problem Identification and Referral – This strategy calls for identification, education and referral to services for those youth who have indulged in age-inappropriate use of tobacco products or alcohol, or who have indulged in the first use of illicit drugs. Activities under this strategy would include screening for tendencies toward substance abuse and referral for preventive treatment for curbing such tendencies.
- Community-Based Processes – This strategy aims to enhance the ability of the community to more effectively provide prevention services for ATOD problems. Activities include organizing, planning and enhancing the efficiency and effectiveness of service implementation, interagency collaboration, coalition building and networking. Building healthy communities encourages healthy lifestyle choices.
- Environmental – This type of strategy establishes, modifies or enhances written and unwritten community standards, codes and attitudes that influence the incidence and prevalence of problems related to ATOD use in the general population. This includes community norms, local ordinances and laws to restrict availability and access, price increases and community-wide actions.

In fiscal year 2006, according to the KIT Prevention System Annual Report, more than 327,353 educational materials were disseminated by the 33 county authorities throughout the state. The KIT Prevention System Annual Report showed that county authorities provided services to 8,414 non-duplicated individual participants in South Carolina. The leading group served was youth ages 12 to 14 (middle school), totaling 4,170 participants. Together with youth ages 6 to 11 (elementary school) and youth ages 15 to 17 (high school), the three school-aged groups made up 88% of the total registered participants. The largest adult group was ages 25 to 54, with a total of 595 participants.

APPENDIX F: Recovery Houses

Recovery houses are open only to people who are recovering from alcohol and/or other drug dependence and who remain free of alcohol or other drugs. The houses must be self-supporting and self-run democracies. Finally, admission to the houses is determined by the residents themselves. Individuals interested in living in a recovery house should apply directly to the house of their choice. Houses marked with an asterisk (*) are chartered by Oxford House.
